20 Dead And 200 Hurt in Pittsburgh Gas Plant Blast

NORTHSIDE OF CITY IS ROCKED BY EXPLOSION

Staggering List of Injured, Survey Reveals, After Tank Goes Up

CAUSE UNDETERMINED

Practically Every Building in Downtown Area Shaken; Phone Wires Out

Pittsburgh, Nov. 14 — With the streets crowded with thousands of persons going to work, a terrific explosion at the Equitable Gas Company's Reeds-dale plant on the Northside rocked the city below, leaving in its awake a death of dead and injured.

At noon police stated that the known toll of dead stood at 20, but a careful survey by International News Service accounted for but 14. There were 11 bodies in the county morgue and the hospitals reported three dead.

RELATIVES FIGHT AT HOSPITALS

Pittsburgh, Nov. 14—Thousands of frantic persons begged for admittance to the Allegheny General and Presbyterian Hospitals where most of the victims of the Equitable Gas Co. explosion today were taken, in an effort to ascertain if their relatives were among the injured.

It was all ambulances could do to push their way through the mobs and deliver the injured to receiving wards. The situation was difficult for hospital authorities to handle in the absence of policemen, all of whom had been summoned to the scene of the blast to hold back the crowds.

Telephone communication with the hospitals was impossible and newspaper offices were besieged with queries concerning missing persons.

The following dead have been identified:

C. F. Michaels, superintendent of the demolished plant.

Mrs. —— Marty, 35, died in a hospital.

Joe Harris, 30, a negro.

George Lowen 55, died in a hospital.

There was a staggering list of injured. A survey of the largest hospitals showed that 136 injured persons had been treated up to noon. Police said probably as many more were taken to their homes or were rushed to other hospitals.

Tank Explodes

A huge natural gas storage tank exploded at 8:45 a. m., but officials of the gas company were at loss to explain what caused the blast.

City officials described it as one of Pittsburgh's major disasters. There was not a building in the downtown area but what was shaken by the terrific concussion, and a shower of window glass endangered the lives of pedestrians in the streets.

Telephone communication was paralyzed by the thousands of calls from relatives and friends of persons in the vicinity when the blast occurred. There were far too few ambulances and physicians. Trucks, taxicabs, police patrols and all types of vehicles were pressed into service to carry the injured to hospitals.

The huge tank was of 5,000,000 cubic feet capacity and was one of three in the Reedsdale-st plant. The other tanks were not affected.

Rises High in Air

One theory that police investigated as the possible cause of the explosion was that workmen repairing the tank,

SAYS TANK WENT UP LIKE BALLOON

Pittsburgh, Nov. 14 — Fire Chief Richard Smith who was driving across a bridge nearby gave a vivid description of the disastrous explosion at the Equitable Gas Co. plant here today.

"I saw the great steel gas tank hundreds of feet in the air," said Chief Smith. "It went up like a huge balloon riding on the crest of a burst of flames a block wide.

"For an instant it seemed that the tank remained motionless in the air. Then it exploded like a great fireworks bomb with a report that could be heard throughout the city.

"With the explosion in midair tons of steel plunged to the ground. There was a terrific concussion, then a crash of buildings and glass filled the air."

Chief Smith was the first fireman to arrive on the scene.

REMUS, READY FOR TRIAL, WILL ENTER PLEA OF INSANITY

Confessed Wife-Slayer and King of Bootleggers Declares "Remus' Brain Exploded;" 75 Veniremen Summoned as Court Gets Under Way in Cincinnati

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
(Copyright 1927, by I. N. S.)

CINCINNATI, Nov. 14—George Remus, one-time millionaire "king of the bootleggers," who goes on trial today for the murder of his wife, Imogene, whom he shot and killed in Eden Park, Cincinnati, on Oct. 6, will plead "transitory maniacal insanity," he told the writer, in his cell on the sixth floor of the county building this morning as he prepared to go into court.

"Remus' brain exploded when he shot her," said Remus. "He was momentarily out of his mind." Remus always refers to himself as "Remus," seldom using the first person pronoun. It is not "my trial". It is "Remus' trial". A former Chicago criminal lawyer, Remus will act as his own attorney, being assisted by his co-counsel, Charles H. Elston. Remus said he would make the opening defense plea to the jury himself and that he planned to take part in the cross-examination of witnesses.

Summon 75 Veniremen

Seventy-five veniremen, from whom the jury will be selected, were summoned to appear this morning in Judge Chester R. Shook's criminal court where the trial will be held.

three attorneys for the state led by Charles P. Taft, son of William Howard Taft, former president of the United States. Attorney Taft said he would demand the death penalty and the electric chair for Remus.

In his cell in the sixth floor of the county building Remus graciously received the International News Service correspondent. He is excessively polite and his speech is sprinkled with legal phraseology, such remarks as "the said whisky," or "the defendant Remus," giving his conversation a fantastic twist.

He ushered the reporter into his "office," a room assigned to him close to his cell. He used this office in preparing his case. The table in the room was stacked with law books. A prisoner "doing time" for impersonating a federal officer sat at a typewriter. He is Remus' stenographer. Holly wreaths, sent to him by friends, adorned the walls.

GEORGE REMUS

"Making Best of It"

"I feel fine physically and as well mentally as is possible under the circumstances," said Remus in response to a question. Remus paused thoughtfully, a frown wrinkled his massive forehead.

"I am making the best of a damnable situation," he declared. "I am, of course, mentally depressed at times. What can one expect when confined in prison in the predicament Remus finds himself?"

Remus, during a conversation lasting more than an hour, repeatedly referred to "him" and "her," meaning Franklin L. Dodge, Jr., a former dry agent, and Mrs. Remus.

"I killed her," the bald-headed bootleg

THREE HURT WHEN SCHOOL BUS UPSETS

Grand Prairie Children Sustain Bruises as Horses Shy at Dog

TAKEN TO KIRKPATRICK

Accident Occurs Near Interurban Crossing on Bucyrus-pk

Three children, students at the Grand Prairie Centralized School, received minor cuts and bruises this morning when a horse drawn school bus in which they were riding overturned in the ditch north of the city.

The children, Rufus Carr, 7, the grandson of Rufus Carr; Robert Gregory, 8, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Gregory, and Junior Clark, 7, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Clark, all living east of Bucyrus-pk, were taken to Kirkpatrick where their injuries were dressed.

According to C. D. Myers, driver of the bus, the accident occured just after he had crossed the interurban tracks on the Bucyrus-pk and when the horses became frightened at a dog which appeared suddenly. The horses lunged to one side of the road, pulling the bus far enough for two wheels to drop into the ditch, causing the bus to turn on its side. The horses made no effort to run away and the bus was righted after the frightened children were removed. With the exception of the three who were injured, the children continued on their way to school.

With a quarry on each side of the road and no guard rails, the accident might have proved more serious had the horses taken fright and ran away, school officials said. An appeal for guard rails along both sides of the road, was made this morning by Charles Holt, superintendent at the school. He also said the bill boards which have been placed along the road near the intersection of the Bucyrus-pk and the quarry road, made the spot dangerous.

RED CROSS FAR FROM GOAL IN ANNUAL DRIVE

Total of $2,826.50 Collected as Roll Call Campaign Comes to Close

PARTIAL REPORTS MADE

Soliciting Among Industries Expected To Double Present Amount

With today set as the wind-up of the annual Red Cross roll call campaign in Marion County, partial reports from the several hundred volunteer workers soliciting memberships and subscriptions showed that a total of $2,826.50 had been collected.

This includes $1,499 subscribed in the up-town business district last week and $1,327.50 obtained in the house-to-house canvass made in the city's residential districts yesterday by representatives of the King's Daughters and five local lodges.

No reports have been made by workers in communities outside the city of Marion nor by the special committee which is in charge of collecting contributions from industrial concerns. It is expected that collections from these sources will come very near to doubling the amount now on hand, Red Cross officials said today.

Many Not at Home

Many persons who were not at home when the solicitors called Sunday will leave their contributions at the banks of the city and it is thought that these additional subscriptions will also result in a substantial increase of the total.

The goal set in the campaign is 2,500 members and a fund of $10,000. Whether these figures will be reached will probably not be known definitely for probably a week or more as considerable time will be required to wind up the final details, George B. Knapp, roll call chairman, said today.

Improvement Shown

The house-to-house canvass yesterday proved more successful than the one conducted in connection with last year's roll call, when the subscriptions totalled only $960. This is taken as an indication that the roll call as a whole will yield a larger sum than the total received in 1926.

Organizations in charge of yesterday's canvass of the residential districts were the King's Daughters, Marion Council, Knights of Columbus, Canby Lodge, No. 51, Knights of Pythias, Marion Lodge No. 402, Knights of Pythias, Buckeye Aerie, No. 337 Fraternal Order of Eagles and Marion Lodge No. 32, B. P. O. Elks.

PRELIMINARY SCHEDULE OF RATES DRAWN

Tentative Charge on $1,000 Is Placed at $23.60 for Coming Year

10 CENTS UNDER 1926

Budget Commission Seeking To Effect Gradual Reduction Throughout County

A small decrease in the tax rate for the city of Marion is probable during the coming year, according to a preliminary schedule of rates for the entire county completed by the tax budget commission.

Last year's levy on each $1,000 worth of property in the city was $23.70 and the tentative rate as fixed for next year is $23.60. County Auditor Earl F. Thomas, clerk of the budget commission, stated today that this rate will probably be officially approved.

Although levies have been figured for all other taxing districts in the county, they are not final and a number of changes are likely to be made before the schedule is submitted to the state tax commission for approval, Auditor Thomas stated.

Increases Shown

In the preliminary list of rates, which was drawn up by the commission after several weeks' work, a number of the villages and other taxing sub-divisions show considerable increase over the levies of last year. An effort is being made by the commission to effect adjustments which will bring the general average of rates down to something near the level of last year.

The county auditor said today that it is the aim of the budget commission to prevent tax rates in the county from going higher and if at all possible to effect a gradual reduction without crippling operation of public service. The commission has urged officials of the various sub-divisions to keep their budgets at the lowest possible figure in order to make this reduction possible.

Estimates Cut

The cut in the city tax rate was made possible through co-operation of city, county and school officials, Thomas said. When the rate figures were first drawn up Saturday morning, the result showed a levy larger than that of last year. A conference was then held between representatives of the city, county and school district and expense estimates cut so that the rate was finally brought to $23.60.

County Auditor Thomas spent most of Sunday and all of today telephoning to officials in taxing sub-divisions throughout the county notifying them that unless their expense budgets could be reduced, tax rates in their districts would register increases next year. It was expected that as a result of this notice from the auditor, budget cuts will be made in most of the districts and thus prevent tax increases.

The budget commission met with unusual difficulty in keeping the rates at a low average, one of the chief obstacles being a special tax of .60 on every $1,000 worth of property levied by the state. This levy is compulsory in every county and was made to cover the deficit which developed in the state operating funds last year.

Auditor Thomas expected to have his final work on the tax rates completed today so that the schedule could be taken down to the state tax commission for official approval Tuesday. Before being submitted to the state officials the rates will be formally approved by the county budget commission, which consists of Thomas, J. E. Messenger, county treasurer and Frank Wiedeman, prosecuting attorney.

Valuation of $90,321,930

The rates were figured on a total tax valuation for the entire county of $90,321,930, which included $50,167,760 covering property in the city of Marion and $40,154,170 outside the city.

This is practically the same as the valuation used in fixing last year's rates. A substantial increase in the county's tax valuation, especially on city property, is expected for next year, but definite figures are not available at this time, making it necessary for the budget commission to base its tax rate computations on last year's value.

Valuations on public utility properties represent the chief item not available at this time. These properties are appraised by the state commission, which has not filed its report. This report is expected to show an increase of approximately $200,000.

First Reformed Church Is Filled To Capacity For Dedication of New Edifice

Rev. Herbert F. Weckmueller, Pastor, in Charge of Services; Dr. F. W. Leich, Dayton Theological Seminary Instructor, Gives Principal Address

With the church auditorium filled to capacity, approximately 750 persons being in attendance, the new First Reformed Church was dedicated in a beautiful ceremony there yesterday morning "to the worship and service of Almighty God, in the name of the Father and the Son and the Holy Ghost," Rev. Herbert F. Weckmueller, pastor of the church since May, 1923, together with the congregation, performed the act of dedication. Reverend Weckmueller giving the dedicatory prayer which followed.

"The Meaning of the Church" was the subject of the sermon preached by Dr. F. W. Leich, professor at the Central Theological Seminary, Dayton, as the dedicatory address. Dr. Leich called attention to the meaning of the church to the individual Christian, offering spiritual blessings and opportunities for service, the church's meaning to the community—an organization glad to serve the community of which it is a part, and the meaning of the church to the world at large, an institution obligated to proclaim the gospel to all mankind.

Keys Presented

A ceremony of presentation of the keys in which the pastor, architect, general contractor and chairmen of the building committee and board of trustees participated, preceded the service at the entrance of the church.

Music for the service was a vocal number, "Open the Gates of the Temple," Knepp, Miss Dora Jacoba, organ numbers by Mrs. Clara Belle Shaning and Miss Dorothy Zieg and the anthem, "Praise the Lord" by the choir.

Services in celebration of the completion of the new edifice, are to be held at the church each night this week except Saturday. Tonight Rev. S. I. Royer, Canal Winchester, president of the Central Ohio Classis, Ohio Synod of the Reformed Church, will give a sermon on the subject, "The New Standard of Heroism," and S. H. Keller will conduct devotionals.

Well Attended

Both the afternoon and night services were well-attended yesterday, dinner and supper having been served at the church. In the afternoon, Dr. Harry L. Beam, professor at Heidelberg College, Tiffin, gave an inspiring address on the fellowship of worship, the value of the church in bringing souls together for service of the Lord. Reverend Royer was heard in greetings from the Classis and Rev. George B. Groves, president of the Marion County Ministerial Association, in greetings from the local ministry. Other features

C. OF C. BOARD ELECTS TODAY

George B. Knapp Ends Services as Active Head of Organization

Election of officers of the Marion Chamber of Commerce for the coming year, scheduled to take place this afternoon, marks the close of George B. Knapp's term of service as president and executive head of the organization, which began on Feb. 1, 1926.

According to a plan agreed upon by the board of directors several weeks ago, management of the chamber in the future will be in the hands of an executive secretary with the new president serving without pay and chiefly in an official advisory capacity.

This was the plan in effect prior to the beginning of Mr. Knapp's service as president. During his administration he directed the affairs of the organization with Miss Mary P. Kelly assisting him as secretary.

Industries Added

Under Mr. Knapp's management the chamber of commerce carried out a program which resulted in bringing several new industries to the city in addition to promoting various other important activities which contributed substantially to community progress.

Directors and other officials of the chamber of commerce pronounce this record of achievement as being especially praiseworthy because of unfavorable business conditions which prevailed throughout the country during a large part of this period.

FALLS WITH PAIN, SUFFERS FRACTURE

Richwood, Nov. 14—A sudden, fleeting neuritis pain was given the blame today for a limb fracture suffered in an unusual manner by Mrs. Alice Mounnasmith yesterday morning at 10:30 o'clock.

Mrs. Mounnasmith has suffered from neuritis at various times and yesterday while she was working in the kitchen at her home here, she fell to the floor when a sudden pain momentarily paralyzed her leg. She sustained a bone fracture in falling.

VENUE CHANGE SOUGHT IN SUIT

Application Filed in Action Involving Burr Raichley Estate Here

Application for a change of venue for trial of the suit brought to set aside the will of Burr Raichley, who bequeathed the bulk of his $250,000 estate to the Marion Masonic Temple Co., was filed in the court of common pleas, today, by Mrs. Rose A. Heflinger, of Norwalk, O., one of the plaintiffs.

The case was set for hearing on Nov. 22 and it is likely that postponement may be necessary for consideration of the application filed today.

Removal of the case from Marion County to an adjoining county is asked. In making this request, Mrs. Heflinger says she believes that because of the large number of persons interested in Marion and Marion County, it will be impossible to have a fair and impartial trial here.

As basis for this contention, she points out that the Marion Masonic Temple Co., chief beneficiary under the will, has more than 50 stockholders residing in Marion County and that the Women's Federated Clubs, another beneficiary, has a membership here far in excess of 50.

The title of the suit is Walter L. Freeze and others against Harry J. Merchant and Clyde C. Smith, executors of the Raichley will, and others. Included among the defendants are all heirs named in the Raichley will and the plaintiffs are his cousins and other distant relatives.

HUNTERS BEGIN RUSH FOR GAME LICENSES

Nimrods Storm Office of County Clerk; Season Opens Tuesday

The final rush of applicants for hunting licenses, in preparation for opening of the rabbit and pheasant season, scheduled for Tuesday, was under way at the office of County Clerk Harley E. Koons, today.

The clerk predicated that today's sale of licenses will come close to being a record. At noon nearly 100 had been issued and there was every indication that the sale would continue heavy throughout the afternoon.

Tonight the clerk will keep his office open from 7 until 9 o'clock for accommodation of last-minute applicants.

Saturday morning 140 licenses were sold; applicants keeping the clerk and his assistants busy until closing time at 12 o'clock.

At noon today the record of licenses sold thus far this year totalled approximately 1,100, which approximately equals the average of former years, the county clerk stated. He estimates that before the close of the year license sales will total between 1,400 and 1,500.

All licenses being sold now are being taken out by hunters who will be out on the trail of rabbits and pheasants. The open season for rabbits extends from Nov. 15 to Jan. 1 and pheasants may be killed for 10 days following Nov. 15.

PITTSBURGH LABOR CONFERENCE OPENS

Leaders Answer Call of William Green To Strengthen Defense

Pittsburgh, Nov. 14—A conference of labor leaders from all parts of the country and representing all crafts, regarded as the most important event in the bituminous coal strike situation since the impasse began on April 1, opened here today.

Answering the call of William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, the union leaders came here for the express purpose of "devising methods to meet the attack against the United Mine Workers by anti-union coal owners and their industrial, financial and political allies."

The matters that will occupy the attention of the conferees are:

The federal injunction restricting strike activities against the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Corp.

The activities of "coal and iron" or company police who are deputized by the commonwealth.

SHOWMAN ARRESTED

Dover Man Charged With Operating Theaters on Sunday

Dover, Nov. 14—George Chreft, owner of two moving picture theaters here, is to be given a hearing in municipal court this afternoon on a charge of violating the city's "blue laws" after operating his shows Sunday.

It was the first time Dover has had Sunday movies, Chreft having announced last week that he expected to show Sunday afternoon since he believed he had as much right to operate as confectioners and filling stations.

Every church in the city has expressed its disapproval of Sunday theaters and a warrant issued against Chreft by William H. Pope, church people lending their support. Police Chief W. E. Byers closed the theaters yesterday afternoon but they were reopened last night.

$20,000,000 Building Appropriation Will Be Christmas Gift to 137 Cities U. S.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14—Congress will make a Christmas present to 137 cities throughout the country of a $20,000,000 appropriation bill for new public buildings, additions or sites, under plans being formulated by Republican leaders of the house.

This appropriation, which passed the house and was lost in the senate at the last session, will be included in the first deficiency bill to be taken up soon after the house convenes on Dec. 5, Rep. Martin B. Madden, Republican, of Illinois, chairman of the house appropriations committee, announced today. He predicted passage before the Christmas holidays.

With this measure out of the way, house leaders, who must inaugurate public building legislation, will begin work upon a public building program for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1928.

Rep. Richard N. Elliott, Republican, of Indiana, chairman of the house public buildings committee, said he would reintroduce his bill which raises the annual limit of expenditure upon new buildings from $25,000,000 to $35,000,000. With existing legislation providing $10,000,000 a year for expenditures in the District of Columbia, the purpose of the bill is to increase the amount which may be expended outside the district by this amount.

Although there have been reports that the administration would request that this increase be postponed a year, in view of the delay occasioned by failure of the $20,000,000 bill last session, Representative Elliott believes that congress will insist upon the full public building program.

HOLD FAREWELL PARTY AT GLEN M'CARLEY HOME

Agosta, Nov. 14—A farewell party was held on Mrs. Glen nMcCarley at Marion Friday. Well-filled baskets were taken and the time spent socially.

Those from here present were: Mrs. George Toby, Mrs. Clarence Smith, Mrs. Roy Hughes, Mrs. Asa Brown, Mrs. Frank McCarley, Mrs. Howard Jenner, Mrs. Paul Boles, and Mrs. Bing McPeak.

Lady Cynthia Mosley, daughter of the late Marquis Curzon of Kedleston, who surprised her family and friends some time ago by joining the Labor Party, has dropped her title in the little autobiography of herself contributed to the new Labor "Who's Who." She simply calls herself "Cynthia Blanche Mosley."

What Out-of-Towners Demand To See When They Visit New York

Left: The Little Church Around the Corner. Upper right: Brooklyn Bridge. Lower right: The Statue of Liberty. These three "sights" are the most popular with people going to New York for the first time, according to "rubberneck wagon" chiefs.

WHAT are the most popular objects of interest in New York?

Offhand you might say the Statue of Liberty, Grant's Tomb, the Woolworth Building the Metropolitan Tower and the Metropolitan Museum—but you'd be mostly wrong.

According to sightseeing bus officials, who handle thousands of visitors a week in New York and ought to know what they're talking about, the chief of interest is the Brooklyn Bridge. Brooklyn Bridge piques the curiosity of out-of-towners the most.

Second in demand—and here's a surprise—is the Little Church Around the Corner.

The Statue of Liberty ranks third.

Tall buildings may excite foreigners, but they don't appeal much to the folks from the hinterlands. There's hardly any interest in the Woolworth Building, the Metropolitan Tower, the Flatiron Building, or other skyscrapers.

Grant's Tomb also fails to classify as a magnet.

The popularity of the Little Church Around the Corner will come as a surprise to many. But it must be remembered that it's been so celebrated in song and story that everybody has heard about it, and its sentimental attraction is great.

And mighty few people would figure that Brooklyn Bridge would attract the folks on the "rubberneck wagons." Not after all these years! But it still stands at the head of the list.

CLEAR LANES FOR BIG BROADCASTERS

Federal Radio Commission To Make Another Surgical Operation

Washington, Nov. 14—Another major surgical operation on radio frequency allocations will be announced, soon by the Federal Radio Commission.

Admiral W. H. G. Bullard, chairman of the commission, said today that plans are being made to clear of interference the channels between 200.7 and 499.8 meters, giving virtually unimpeded broadcasting lanes for 35 national stations.

This section of the radio setup—600 to 1000 kilocycles—is most important from the listeners' standpoint, for within these limits are found practically all of the high power and so-called national broadcasting stations.

If a successful method of eliminating interference is found by the commission one of the greatest contributions to long distance reception made since the government re-assumed control of radio will have been accomplished.

How They'll Do It

Admiral Bullard for sometime has favored a plan of clearing the otherways for a certain number of big stations, concentrating the smaller broadcasters, with local scope and appeal programs, to other sections of the "dial."

No details of the project were disclosed, but it was assumed that the commission would resort to removal of a number of the 145 stations now operating between 600 and 1000 kilocycles to other sections of the broadcasting channel of 550 to 1500 kilocycles, power cutting in some cases, with arrangement of greater frequency separation between high power stations.

For some time the commission has had the wave length allocations under the X-ray. Thousands of letters from radio fans all over the country disclosing both public opinion as to popularity of stations and interference conditions have been considered, as well as reports from the district supervisors. The bureau of standards and commerce department radio sections have co-operated in a scientific study of the latest allocations.

35 Wave Channels

There are 35 wave channels available or distribution in the 600-1000 kilocycle band, six of them being shared with Canadian stations. Mexico and Cuba are demanding broadcasting rights.

It is not anticipate by the commission that much improvement may be hoped for in the band over 1000 kilocycles with the present number of stations on the air. This part of the setup, suggested as a "radio graveyard" at the first public hearing of the commission, is and probably will remain just that for some time to come.

Between 600 and 1000 kilocycles are found 31 stations with power of 1,500 watts or reater, KDKA, Pittsburgh, WEAF, New York, and WGY, Schenectady, topping the list with 50,000 watts or greater. KDKA, Pittsburgh, this band which probably will be benefited by the new plan include WBAP and WFAA of Dallas, WSAI and WLW of Cincinnati, WJZ of New York, WFCL WHT, WBBM, WLS, WCBO and WEBH of Chicago, WSB of Atlanta, KFI of Los Angeles, WJR of Pontiac, WOR of Newark, WCCO of Minneapolis, WTAM of Cleveland, KGO of Oakland, KOA of Denver, WSM of Nashville and others.

This is no secret:
grass stains will come out!

A DIRTY, green stain is hard to get off, especially when you have to use hard water. The soap mixes with the hardness in hard water, and instead of suds, there's scum. A dirty ring around the edge of the basin. How can you clean clothes in such water?

But make the water soft with Melo. The scum will go quickly; the suds will come quickly. Grass stains, as green and dirty as you please, can't resist soft water. Get a can of Melo today at your grocer's.

PARENTS OF MARION MAN WED 60 YEARS

Mr. and Mrs. Loring Bates Celebrate Anniversary Near Tampa, Fla.

Mr. and Mrs. Loring Bates, well-known residents of Logan County and parents of P. E. Bates, 282 S. [illegible] celebrated the sixtieth anniversary of their wedding yesterday at their home near Tampa, Fla., where they are entertaining a company of friends in honor of the event.

Mr. and Mrs. Bates, who are well known in Marion, where they have visited frequently, have been lifelong residents of Logan County, their home being on a farm two miles north of West Mansfield. In recent years they have been spending six months of each year at their Florida winter residence.

Two children, three grandchildren and three great grandchildren are descendants of Mr. and Mrs. Bates, no death having occurred in the family circle since their marriage 60 years ago. The two children are the son, living here, and Mrs. H. D. Peterson of Washington, D. C.

The anniversary event found both Mr. Bates, who is 84 years of age, and his wife, 76, enjoying excellent health.

Mr. Bates is one of the best-known citizens of Logan County, where he has been prominently identified with the farming industry during the greater part of his life. He served throughout the Civil War with a company organized in his home neighborhood. Mrs. Bates' maiden name was Miss Josie Elliott.

SOCIETY SHOCKED BY MANIKINS

Paul Poiret, famous French fashion creator, has scandalized New York society matrons by his methods. The sight of so much lingerie in public has excited no end of comment.

FRATERNITIES FAIL TO BREAK CONTROL

"Big Ten" Faction at O. S. U. Dominates Election of Class Officers

Marion Star Bureau
Ohio State University

Columbus, Nov. 14—Efforts of combined forces of several fraternity groups to break the control held by the "Big Ten" faction, again failed in the annual election of class officers held at Ohio State University, last week.

In spite of the reinforcement of the "Big Four" group by the "Enormous 18," all of the candidates selected to the class offices at the election were supported by the "Big Ten" faction.

Robert Evans, of Columbus, who won the office of freshman president, was the only successful candidate of the "Big Four" and the "Enormous 18," combines. The winning party has held control of politics on the Ohio State campus for several years.

10 Leading Bodies

The "Big Ten" combine is composed of 10 of the leading Greek-letter organizations. The "Big Four" fraternities also are prominent on the campus while members of the "Enormous 18" are national organizations but are not as influential as the other societies. A great majority of the fraternities and sororities are not affiliated with any of the factions.

Last year the "Big Ten" won nearly all of the class offices, including all of the president's chairs. The result of the election last year caused the organization of the "Big Four" with the "Enormous 18," which was organized on the campus this year.

Politics will again figure prominently on the Ohio campus in the selection of homecoming queen who will preside at the homecoming ceremonies, Nov. 18 and 19. The election, also by a popular vote of the students, will be held this week. Although university organizations will nominate the candidates each of the factions will support one of the throne-seekers. Six co-eds are out for the honors.

SIGN INSTALLED

Unusually Large Electrical Device Erected by Jewelry Company

What is said to be the largest "Diamond sign" to be erected in front of a jewelry store south of Cleveland, has just been installed in front of the May Jewelry Co., W. Center-st, and was illuminated for the first time Saturday night. The sign contains some 120 odd flashing lights, located both inside and out, and producing, when lighted, the colors of a real diamond. The lights form the words, "May Jewelry Co." the "May" and "Co." flashing while the "Jewelry" remains stationery. In daytime the diamond appears to be blue.

LIBRARY IMPROVEMENTS

Work of redecorating, repairing and installing new lighting fixtures, the first improvements of that nature since the building was erected 20 years ago, will begin later in the week at City Library, following a meeting of the Library Board when contracts for the work will be awarded.

king declared, "because she double-crossed me for him. It was too much. It weighed upon by mind, and on that fatal morning, early in October, my brain exploded and I shot her dead.

"She and that man had done all in their power to ruin me. She had deserted me for him, my bitterest enemy. She robbed me of my fortune, had me kept in jail, had plotted to have me killed and even tried to have me deported to a country I had not been in for 46 years—since I was three years old.

"So when I followed her taxi in my car into Eden Park on the morning of Oct. 6, I thought of all these things. I knew she was then on her way to court to divorce me. When I caught up to her and seized chr by the hand, intending to ask her to give up the life she was leading, and she said, 'Daddy, don't hurt me, you know I love you,' why, my mind just blew up and I shot her. I knew she was not sincere. She got her just deserts."

Asked if he still loved her, despite what he charges she did to him, Remus laughed shrilly, almost sardonically.

"Love—love," he repeated, "love isn't the word." He looked at the floor for several minutes without uttering a word. Then said softly:

"The woman she was when I married her I loved—yes, indeed. But how she changed when that man wormed his way into her good graces."

Turns Down Aid

Remus said he had received countless offers of financial assistance but had turned them all down.

"I want moral support more than anything else in the world now." He declared. "With it Remus can win this legal battle."

Then this man, who was once the directing genius of a $100,000,000 booze business, confided that now he is once more engaged in work as a lawyer, even though as attorney for himself, he has "peace of mind" because he is doing the work he loves.

"It is too late for remorse now," he said, sadly, "but I regret that I ever gave up law and turned my mind and energies to circumventing the prohibition law. There is more in life than money. Money will not bring happiness or contentment. I have found that out to my sorrow.

"I am a marytr to the cause of prohibiton—the greatest legal abortion ever put on the statute books."

PITTSBURGH BLAST

ignited the gas with an acetelyne torch, believing that the tank was empty. The workmen were in the employ of the Riter-Conley Co. builders.

Witnesses said the large tank, which stood 75 feet above the ground, rose high in the air and exploded. There was a puff of smoke, then the sky was illuminated by a big ball of fire and the remnants of the tank crushed to the ground.

The city's asphalt plant across the street was demolished and 10 of the 15 workmen lost their lives, according to reports. Six buildings, of the Union Paint Co. were crushed like eggshells. The walls were blown in, imprisoning workmen.

Every piece of fire equipment in the downtown district was rushed to the gas plant, but firemen soon turned their attention from the smouldering ruins to aid in caring for the victims who lay prostrate in the street or buried beneath tons of debris.

Population Stunned

For five minutes after the explosion the population of Pittsburgh was stunned. Everywhere in the downtown district there were victims of shattered windows.

Then came a general fire alarm and wild appeals for help. Persons living in the vicinity of the blast were stunned at first. Then they ran through the streets terrified, not knowing when a second explosion might increase their suffering.

From beneath crumbled walls and shattered buildings came cries of victims pinned beneath the wreckage. The task of rescuing them was so great that the comparatively small number of physicians and rescue workers scarcely knew where to begin.

Mothers Frantic

Children in the Manchester district on their way to school were in the direct path of the blast and were showered with glass and bits of steel like from exploding shrapnel. Many were injured. Mothers of these children soon swarmed into the streets and their plaintive calls added to the scenes of sickening terror.

An hour after the explosion the news had spread to all parts of the city, and all telephone lines were taxed with thousands of calls from persons who sought information concerning their relatives. Unable to get calls through, thousands besieged the two big hospitals near the gas plant and clamored for admittance, but the mob was so great that hospital authorities were forced to admit none.

An unidentified boy was blown into the Ohio River from a bridge. A patrolman rescued him and sent him to a hospital. He was unconscious when dragged from the river.

Courts Adjourned

All courts where the presence of policemen as witnesses was required, adjourned to permit the policemen to aid in handling the crowds.

Firemen said it was miraculous that the explosion was not even more disastrous because of the proximity of two other huge gas storage tanks near the one that exploded, one of which has a capacity of 4,000,000 cubic feet.

Director of Public Safety James Clark at noon ordered every police and fire station in the city placed at the disposal of persons made homeless in the disaster.

The Allegheny County Chapter of the American Red Cross met at noon to formulate plans for relief of victims who lost all their possessions in the explosion.

McMullin is the Burns operative, who submitted an eight-page affidavit to District Attorney Gordon setting forth in detail the activities of the Burns Agency in the jury scandal. PETITION GRANTED BY COUNTY BOARD

Commissioners Honor Request of Vernon Heights Realty Co. for Ditch Branch

Petition for a branch of the proposed Ququa ditch improvement, filed by the Vernon Heights Realty Co., was granted by the board of county commissioners at a hearing held this morning and March 27, 1928, was set as date for final hearing on the entire project. The hearing at that time will include both the branch, which extends to the west line of the Vernon Heights addition, and the main ditch, which is to be improved to a point about six miles south of the city.

Delay of the final hearing until March 27 was necessary because of several other important ditch projects having priority, the commissioners stated today. It was originally intended to let the contract for the Ququa improvement this year, but filing of compensation and damage claims by property owners prevented carrying out of this plan.

The branch line was granted for the Vernon Heights Co. in order to provide an adequate outlet to the main ditch. This action was taken when the Vernon Heights Co. pointed out that although it was assessed for a large part of the cost of the main improvement, no provision had been made for a connecting line. The branch will be about 2,000 feet in length.

The Ququa improvement will be one of the largest ditch projects constructed in the county in 10 years. The cost of the main line is estimated at $33,516.62, to which will be added the Vernon Heights branch.

The county surveyor has been instructed to have plans and estimates on the branch completed by Mch. 1.

H. A. STEVENS TAKES CASE UP ON APPEAL

Marion Attorney Serving Prison Term Carries Action to Higher Court

Howard A. Stevens, Marion attorney and former city clerk now serving a three year term in the state penitentiary on an embezzlement charge, has taken his case to the court of appeals, asking that the verdict returned against him in the court of common pleas be reversed.

His action was brought in the court of appeals today on a petition in error filed through Franklin Rubrecht, Columbus attorney. Six alleged errors in the common pleas court proceedings are cited, among them being the claim that the judge erred in overruling the motion for a new trial and also in his charge to the jury.

Stevens was found guilty several weeks ago on an indictment charging him with having embezzled more than $9,000 from the estate of Charles F. Ritter, former Morral resident, while serving as executor.

Partition Sought

Ralph R. Miller is plaintiff in a suit brought in the court of common pleas today against William W. Miller and Ida Alkire Miller, the latter's wife, asking for partition of interests in 80 acres of land in Marion County.

The plaintiff claims an undivided one-half interest in the property, which was formerly owned by his parents, William W. Miller and his first wife, Rose Miller, deceased. All debts against the Rose Miller estate have been paid, the petition relates, and the court is asked to issue an order of partition.

The plaintiff says that his father and his second wife, Ida A. Miller, are now in possession of the property and the court is asked to require an accounting of rental charges.

The petition was filed through Jean K. Kennedy and O. G. Sherwood, Columbus attorneys.

The answer was filed through W. P. Moloney, C. D. & M. attorney.

Motion Filed

A motion to quash service of summons in the attachment suit of William H. Oborn against Charlotte Wilson Lack was filed by the defendant today through her attorney, W. P. Moloney. The motion alleges that the court is without jurisdiction.

Moon and others, in which he sets up claims for taxes amounting to $3,456.76. Batavia, Nov. 14—Four persons, all members of one family, who perished in a fire which destroyed their home at Williamsport Saturday, are to be buried in one coffin at Mt. Orab, near here this afternoon.

Mrs. Margie Darlington, 23, died Sunday morning of burns she received from an explosion which occurred when she attempted to light a fire in a cook-stove, at her home, with kerosene, Saturday morning. Her husband, Jesse Darlington, 25, lifted her through a window, but he and his mother, Mrs. Nancy Darlington, 55, and his seven-months old son, Joseph William, were trapped and burned to death in the house.

question of the authenticity of the documents.

The documents published today are six in number, and consist of presidential orders upon the Mexican treasury for the payments of sums aggregating more than $4,000,000 to the promoters of the Nicaraguan revolution. Some of this money, the orders show, was for the purchase of arms and ammunition, while other sums went for the expenses of "secret and confidential" missions sent into Nicaragua by order of President Calles.

Open Secret

Mexico's encouragement and support of the Liberal revolution in Nicaragua, which resulted in American intervention there on a considerable scale, has long been an open secret in Washington. The state department is in possession of evidence showing the clearance of arms and ammunition from Mexican ports. Rifles and cartridges used by the revolutionists bore the imprint of the Mexican government, and there were Mexican officers to be found in the revolutionists' ranks.

Last January President Coolidge addressed a special and extraordinary message to congress, explaining and defending the intervention in Nicaragua on the ground that American interests there were being prejudiced by "outside interference" in Nicaragua's affairs.

A short time later, Secretary of State Kellogg appeared before the foreign relations committee of the senate behind closed doors and informed the members that the state department was "morally convinced" that Mexico was stirring up the trouble in Nicaragua, and that these activities were but a part of a general anti-American program throughout Latin-America.

Offer Proof

Kellogg left with the committee at that time a mass of reports and documents showing that there was "sympathetic feeling" between the Russian and Mexican governments.

The documents which the Herald published today, however, offer the most positive proof that Washington has yet had of the Mexican government's connection with the Nicaraguan civil war. President Calles's signature is attached to the orders upon the treasury for the payment of sums to the rebel leaders.

One of the orders, directing the payment of $100,000 to Dr. Pedro Jose Zepeda, (Nicaraguan Liberal representative at Mexico City) stated that the money was to go "for the purchase of arms and ammunitions for the Liberal army of Nicaragua", and further carried an instruction, "charge this item provisionally to secret expenditures of the presidential general staff."

DAYTON MAY BACK ENDURANCE CONTEST

Clarence Chamberlin Suggests That City Sponsor Attempt for World Record

Dayton, Nov. 14—Clarence Chamberlin, transatlantic flier, who arrived here Sunday with Thea Rasche, German aviatrix, suggested, in an interview today, that the city of Dayton sponsor a contest in an attempt to break the world's airplane endurance record which is at present held by a German aviator, who remained in the air continuously for 53 hours.

The city of Detroit has already offered $25,000 to the aviator who breaks the record, but Chamberlin says that Dayton, because of excellent air facilities here, would be a better locality for the contest. Eight or 10 planes should be entered, he believes. Whether or not the prize offered by Detroit would be paid to a plane which broke the record here is uncertain.

Chamberlin also said today that he hoped to pilot a plane next year which would fly across the Atlantic with 20 or more passengers. He said, however, that no plans for such a trip had yet been made.

Daily Proverb—"He is miserable once who feels it, but twice who fears it before it comes."

With the Army-Notre Dame game of Saturday in mind, we already are beginning to feel sorry over what's liable to happen to the poor Navy, ten days hence.

A Baltimore wire says seven deaths from drinking poison liquor have been recorded there during the last few days, but it doesn't explain the reason for the wave of suicide.

Fifty thousand applicants, a Washington wire says, were seeking the 3,650 jobs at the disposal of the prohibition bureau. There is never lack of "sterling patriots" when opportunity is offered to make connection with the federal pay-roll.

A Hollywood wire says the contracts of the high-salaried movie stars are not being renewed, and that new faces may soon be appearing upon the streets. Hot stuff! We may yet see some acting!

"To the great unknown soldiers of all nations. From a German girl," was the inscription upon a small wreath of yellow flowers placed on the grave of Great Britain's unknown soldier in Westminster Abbey, Armistice day. Peoples generally are nearer each other in feeling than the governments representing them.

A New York stock exchange seat was sold for $285,000, last week. Much as many of us hard-working spreaders of joy and sunshine in paragraphs might enjoy a membership in the exchange, we are bound to feel that such a figure is a bit too high a price to pay for the privilege of being shorn of our accumulated wealth in that way.

As a result of the hold-up prices charged by them, a New York wire says, two-thirds of the night-clubs of the city have been compelled to close up and those still running are losing money. Still, the night club managements aren't the only ones lacking sufficient mentality to absorb the moral in the fable about the folly of killing the goose that laid the golden eggs. It may even sink into the mental voids of the New York theatrical managements in time.

More Humiliation for Chicago.

We can not say that we feel sorry for the Hon. William Hale Thompson, self-confessed patriot and mayor of Chicago. He never should have sent that delegation of fifteen Chicagoans over to study the subway systems of Europe. He should have known better. He should have known that they were just bound to fall into the clutches of the emissaries of that arch foe of American liberty, King George, and become corrupted. He sent them away 100 per cent. Americans, and they're coming back on a British boat, by their own confession only fifty per centers.

It's not at all surprising. We have been prepared for it, ever since Michael Faherty, chairman of the delegation, told a banquet gathering: "We are 100 per cent. Americans, but you have been so cordial that I will be satisfied if I go back a fifty per center." Michael saw it coming, and was honest enough to admit it.

It's the old, old story, we've read so oft before. A party of plain, ordinary American citizens goes abroad as a delegation. It means well; it means to maintain and preserve its sturdy Americanism at any cost. But it falls under the insidious blandishments of the past masters of Old world diplomacy. Lord Soandso pats each and every one of its personnel on the back and tells him he's a mighty fine fellow. Marquis What'shisname asks 'em to have a drink. Viscount Catch'emcomingandgoing takes 'em out to his country estate for a week-end. They are shown about and wined and dined, and the boat's off. They're beginning to see the world through British glasses.

Just think of it—this trusty lieutenant of Mayor Thompson saying this at a farewell banquet given by him to a large party of Britishers before leaving London to sail Saturday on the Berengaria:

"The London subway made the greatest impression on us of any in Europe. The Londoners do not realize the wonderful work that is being conducted here. We regard the subway the same as a public park, operated for the good of citizens. Unfortunately, we will be unable to spend money in Chicago to the same extent, but the ideas received here will form part of the foundation for what we want to be the last word in subway construction."

One hundred per cent. Americanism such as the mayor's would have told those Britishers that Chicago proposed to beat their old subway to a frazzle. But what does Michael, the apostate, do? He doesn't even claim that Chicago will match London's underground system. He actually admits that Chicago can not hope to equal it.

If Mayor Thompson had actually planned to humiliate Chicago some more, he couldn't have gone about it in a surer way than he did by exposing his delegation to the machinations of Old world cunning.

And he holds himself out to be a 100 per cent. American!

European Aviation Achievements.

One of the big city papers which came to this city Sunday in its rotogravure section ran a cut of the Italian military aviation camp in the province of Udine showing half a thousand planes which darkened the sky in their evolutions in honor of King Emmanuel III a few days before when he visited the camp to inspect it.

The text matter under the cut made reference to the recent 315-mile-an-hour flight made by an Italian aviator as "a hint of Italy's rising air power, which is further revealed by this formidable concentration."

The editor who wrote the text might have gone further and cited another indication of Italy's rising air power. He might have made reference to the mysterious seaplane being built for Italy in Switzerland. That this powerful plane is being built in Switzerland doesn't mean that it isn't Italian. A part of Switzerland is blood, in language, in customs and in manner, if not in thought, is as much Italian as Milan, or Florence, or Rome—more Italian than Naples.

The plane in course of construction, according to the report of Major Lester D. Gardner, American aviation expert who has arrived in Paris from Rome, where he was the official representative of the United States department of commerce in the international aviation congress, is equipped with twelve powerful engines and is designed to carry 100 passengers. It is so designed, he says, that it may be quickly transformed, in time of war, into a powerful fighting machine. He refers to the plane as one of the four outstanding advances in European aviation during 1927.

It may be worth while to say that Major Gardner holds the other three notable achievements to be an aeroplane that can fly five miles a minute, a new safety slot for the wings of an aeroplane and the beginning of a movement to internationalize the air lines of Europe.

"There is another development which I might have included in the first list and that is a giant Zeppelin, which I saw at Freidrichshafen, Germany," the major said. "It will soon be completed. In place of gasoline, the engines burn a sort of gas which in turn fills the bags. This will give it four times the cruising range of any existing airship. Doctor Hugo Eckner, the designer, expects to fly from Germany to Los Angeles without a stop next spring."

There can be no question but what America has made a fine showing in individual achievements in the air. We have established many records which have not even been approached. In performance our record has been an amazingly fine one, for we have developed aviators second to none, some of them apparently without a peer. But have we kept pace with a number of European nations in machine development? Aside from the production of what is probably the most dependable motor extant are we not a little weak in the matter of mechanical development, in contrast to the showing made in the report of Major Gardner, and rather lame in the matter of production when our production is compared with that of Germany, France or Italy?

Five hundred planes from one military aviation camp of Italy maneuvered before King Emmanuel, while the entire Atlantic seacoast as well as that of the gulf had to be combed to put on the recent maneuvers viewed by President Coolidge.

Ohio State defeated Dennison sixty-one to six, Saturday, which goes to show that there are poorer elevens than Ohio State, even though it be a matter of some difficulty to locate 'em.

General Motors has just declared a dividend of $65,250,000, the largest in American history. We true aristocrats of the land have this satisfaction, such as it is, our enemies have to pay good and hard for the machines they use in warring upon us.

There's something decidedly fishy about the story sent out from New York City to the effect that Senator William E. Borah expressed agreement with the women's committee for the repeal of the eighteenth amendment that repeal of the amendment is preferable to its violation or nullification. It isn't a bit like the Hon. William. Why, it's often the case that he doesn't even agree with himself.

A Washington court compelled a wife to return to her husband $55 in alimony money, just paid by him to her, when, having placed the money in her handbag, she swung handbag, alimony and all, and pasted her husband upon the jaw. Aha! "A Daniel come to judgment!"

Former General Silvanio Garcia was executed by Mexican government troops last week. What a frightful death list we would have up here were the death penalty inflicted upon those who imagine they are presidential timber!

It now develops that Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, head of the National Woman's party, has never exercised the right of suffrage she for so many years fought to obtain. Of course, she may have felt that the distinction of heading the party is enough honor for any one woman. There are a lot of people who are generous that way.

The Trotzky-Zinovieff-Kamenetf group is being charged with anti-soviet activities by the central committee of the Russian communist party and the breach between the two is daily widening, and there's a possibility that the two divisions may exterminate each other. Luck may yet break with the people of Russia.

A new Pullman chair car built for the Pennsylvania has a smoking compartment for women, and if the innovation proves popular the builders plan to extend the service to Pullman cars all over the country. "Persistence of women passengers in using the men's smoking car," it is explained, "caused the railroad officials to inaugurate the new service." It looks as thought the course of the officials is one of wisdom, but there's never any telling. The venturesome women smokers may be attracted to the men's cars more by the associations they offer than the opportunities to smoke.

"I'M THANKFUL THAT THERE WILL BE NO 'YES' AND 'NO' SENTIMENT ON THIS WET PROBLEM."

Discouraged Folks Open to Disease.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

In a book I read the other day were found these words: "Nothing is so dead as the body once the soul is gone; nothing so ill as the body when the soul is ill."

This would make a wonderful text for a preacher. Is it not a good text, too, for a preached of health?

There are other similar sayings. A familiar one is this: "As a man thinketh in his heart so is he."

Who can doubt that the soul, the mind, the inner nature—who can doubt that this part of man has much to do with his state of health, his physical vigor and his prospect of long life?

A discouraged man lacks vitality. A worried man has lost the energy to do his work well. An unhappy man is filled with aches and pains. It is indeed true that nothing is so ill as the body when the soul is ill.

Many a doctor has been worried because his remedies fail to act. The patient does not respond to treatment as all other patients have responded.

It is uphill work for the physician if the patient has no will to get well. There is no tonic like a cheerful and hopeful mind. The soul supplies an element which vitalizes the prescription. Without this the cure is not complete.

Much of the work of the physician—I sometimes think it is his most important work—is the advice he gives. Many a sick man needs nothing from a box or bottle. What he needs is treatment for his sick soul.

If the doctor lingers at the bedside, it may not be because he is puzzled by the physical symptoms. He is trying to find words to drive away the the mental agony or doubt or fear of the sick man. If he can ease the mind, he knows he can bring health to his patient.

A great many times the mental state can be traced to physical ills. Underlying the depression, nervousness and moroseness, may be a diseased organ. Normal thinking returns when the physical cause is discovered and removed.

But I am confident it works the other way, too. The illness of the sour poisons the body and perverts its functions.

The benefits of religion—I care not what religion—are not confined to the spiritual nature. The exalteration of mind that religion gives, makes the body glow with health, adding to the prospect of life for him who is fortunate enough to possess this mental state.

Poems That Live.

IN THE CUP OF LIFE.

In the cup of life, 'tis true,
Dwells a draught of bitter dew—

Disenchantment, sorrow, pain,
Hunger that no bread can still,
Dreary dawns that dawn in vain,
Hopes that torture, joys that kill.

Yet no other cup I know
Where such radiant waters glow.

It contains the song of birds,
And the shining of the sun;
And the sweet unspoken words
We have dreamed of, every one.

Love of women, winds of men—
Take the cup, nor break it, then.

Editorial Comment.

THE CRIME CODE MUST STAND

All available statistics on the results of the Baumes law and its equivalent in the various states indicate that the new law has had greater results in reducing crime than any experiment tried in recent years. New York gangsters are leaving the state for more promising territory as they realize that one more conviction will send them to Sing Sing for life. Although the Michigan law has not been in effect long enough to serve as a criterion, there is little doubt that criminals in this state also will move on when they are convinced that the authorities are in earnest. The states unprotected by the Baumes law become the logical haunts of the riff-raff driven out of the more progressive communities, and their crime problems have increased many fold since New York and other states have begun to clean house. Michigan, for example, would draw a considerable portion of New York's criminal gentry were it to drop its protection against them now, as it is there is no object in stopping off in this state, and the flood of undesirables continues on to helpless commonwealths unable to raise a barrier against it.

Michigan needs the protection furnished by the strengthened criminal code, for its lack of capital punishment and its leniency in the mattter of pardons and paroles have given rise to an increase in crimes of all sorts. It must hold its own criminals in check and it must make it plain to those of other states that they are not wanted. The repeal of the habitual criminal act or the modifying of it to any great extent would be a piece of official folly that the state would genuinely regret.—Grand Rapids Press.

KIND TO THE FARMER

The excellent weather which most of the country enjoyed this fall, and which only now appears to be breaking up, is something of a challenge to the weather experts, our own "Outdoors Diarist" included, who contend there is no law of compensation in weather conditions.

They contend, for example, that the late wet spring which rendered planting so difficult, and which at one time seemed to spell disaster for the corn farmer, was in no wise connected with a favorable September and October which allowed the crop to mature, and which now promises to fall but little if at all behind the large harvest of last year. Perhaps they are right. Certainly there is no way of proving they are wrong.

But in any event the summer growing season seems to vary but little from year to year. When the corn is planted in early May freezing temperatures frequently are recorded by late September. And when on the other hand planting is delayed a month as it was this year, weather conditions usually remain favorable until it matures.

Compensation or not, American farmers this year are richer by hundreds of thousands of dollars than they would have been had the fall season this year been similar to that of a year ago with wet, cold weather from the first of October. Many of the crops would not have matured and those which did mature could not have been harvested under favorable conditions. Continued warm weather through September and October probably has contributed more to the improved position in which the American farmer finds himself at the close of another season than any other single consideration.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Way of the World.

BY GROVE PATTERSON.

"Perpetual motion inventors" have been laughed at through the ages. And yet, over in Switzerland, at Zurich, there is a clock that has never been wound. It ticks merrily on. It is run by a mechanism set in motion every time the temperature changes two degrees. And the temperature changes often. What's the difference between that and perpetual motion?

A New Jersey doctor, pronounced dead from heart disease, comes back to life for a few hours. To surrounding physicians he said: "Why did you bring me back? I was in heaven."

But he brought no tidings of heaven, and now he is really dead. Despite all the efforts of the spiritualists, the psychics, the experimenters, there is no definite, convincing, satisfying word from the realm of the next life. That is not important. Those who study men and women the most and know them best are sure they are not meant to flicker out like the end of a candle. Vision and imagination, qualities of men, are far too great for this life alone. The capacity for development is evident. There must be a place, in all the years to come, for a human being to grow into his own.

Edison, great scientist, says he is convinced there is a Supreme Intelligence pervading the universe. And he adds: "When we die, we'll know. Why argue about it?" That's a good idea.

Be sure that a Supreme Intelligence will deal with human beings justly. And be sure you won't get any more than justice. Nobody deserves any more.

Some Chicago university co-eds are mourning. They say men want only beauty and care nothing for brains in women. Co-eds who talk that way must have more beauty than brains. They don't know many men. The average man would probably vote for brains first; for housekeeping ability second, and for beauty third. Scenery may become tiresome but ideas are always stimulating.

The hooking up of science with all the ordinary affairs of life is a real sign of advancing civilization. For example, the contribution of chemistry to industry is of profound importance. Research work, in and out of laboratories, is behind most great business and industrial improvements. The world of science calls for the best brains. It is a great day for boys and girls who can go to college—and who are willing to work.

Polar Moonlight.

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS.

Your daily articles have proven very teresting to the writer and resulted in a m better understanding of many common nomena. The question has come up whe there is a moon at the North pole. We o hear of the sun at the North pole, but ra if ever do we hear of the moon. I have sulted all available books relating to this ject, but can find no satisfactory answer.—A. R., Syracuse, New York.

The moon can be seen from the North as well as the sun. But since all visits to North pole, up to date, have been made du the polar day, explorers have not seen moon from that point. It is the sun that are chiefly interested in, since upon its l and heat the success of their adventures pends.

So, too, those who have gone to the No pole say nothing about the stars because stars there, just as on other parts of the ea are not visible in the daytime. But both m and stars are seen at points within the Ar circle that are habitable to man, or where can remain long enough to view the heav both day and night, as for instance in north Greenland, northern Alaska, northern Swe and Norway, etc.

The full moon is visible from the pole a the sun has set at the beginning of the month polar night.

During the middle of winter the moon is visible from the pole when in its "new" mo or "first" and "last" quarter phases, bec its orbit lies nearly in the plane of the ecli having an inclination of only about five grees. On the other hand, in the middl summer, the full moon is not visible from North pole, while its "new" and "quar phases are lost in the light of the unset sun.

You understand, of course, that when sun moon is seen from the pole it appears circ horizontally around the sky because of earth's daily rotation, instead of rising in East and setting in the West, as occurs alw outside the polar circles.—Copyright, 1927

A MARION CHILD IS RELIEVED OF LONG SUFFERING

Local Lady Tells How The New Konjola Compound Benefited Her Daughter

"I am so highly thankful for the great relief Konjola brought to our seven-year old child that I will not only make a public indorsement of this wonderful medicine, but I will also tell my neighbors and friends how much I think of this splendid preparation of yours."

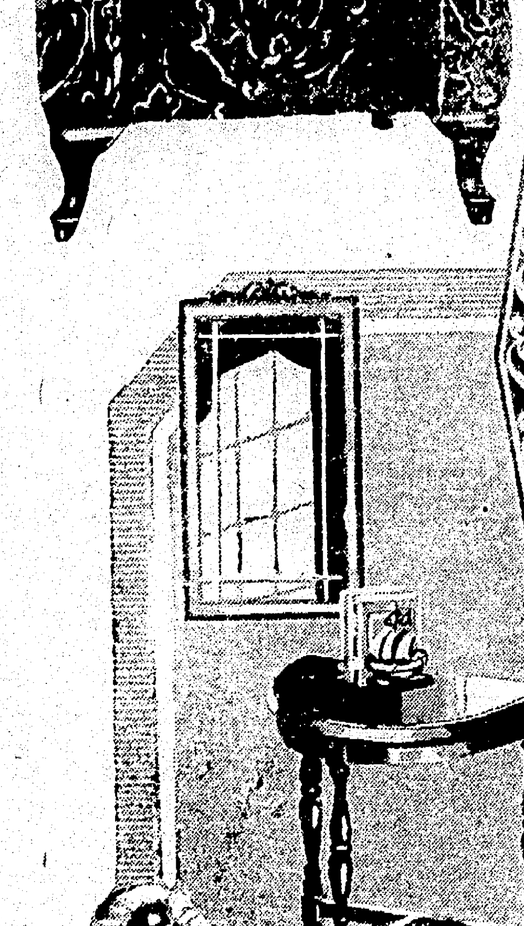

This remarkable statement about the celebrated new Konjola compound was made a few days ago by Mrs. H. E. Martin, well-known Marion lady, living at 504 Pearl Street, this city, while talking with The Konjola Man at the Stump and Sams Pharmacy, 121 South Main Street, this city, where crowds of people call throughout each day to find out for themselves about this surprising medical preparation that has recently astounded drug men and general public alike in this entire section.

"For several months our little girl's health had been a constant worry to us," continued Mrs. Martin. "She wouldn't eat, was restless at nights and losing weight and dwindling away. She wouldn't play like other children and just seemed to be in a stupor all the time. We gave her nearly everything recommended to us, and were informed by best authorities that it would take a long time to get her back to health again, as she was all rundown.

"I decided to have her take Konjola, and while she has taken it only two weeks, I can truthfully say she is the picture of health. I think I must be the happiest woman in the city now. I notice that my daughter's cheeks are getting pink color in them and her eyes actually sparkle with life. She is hungry all the time, and sleeps fine at nights.

"Konjola has done more for my child than any medicine we tried. It relieved her of long suffering, and we want you to know how grateful we really are to a splendid medicine. We will always recommend it."

The Konjola Man is at the Stump Pharmacy, 121 South Main Street, Marion, where he is daily meeting the local public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy.—Adv.

GIRLHOOD TO MOTHERHOOD

Iowa Woman Found Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Always Helpful

Vinton, Iowa.—"When I was seventeen years old I had to stay at home from school. I finally had to quit school, I was so weak. I suffered for about two years before I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, then I picked up one of your books and read it. I began taking the medicine. Now I am a housekeeper with six children, and I have taken it before each one was born. I cannot tell you all the good I have received from it. When I am not as well as can be I take it. I have been doing this for over thirteen years and it always helps me. I read all of your little books I can get and I tell everyone I know what the Vegetable Compound does for me."—Mrs. Frank Sellers, 510 7th Avenue, Vinton, Iowa.

Many girls in the fourth generation are learning thru their own personal experiences the beneficial effects of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Mothers who took it recommend it to their daughters as a dependable medicine.

FINAL SERVICE

Cincinnati Pastor To Close Sermons at Holiness Church

With his sermon on the subject, "The Last Chance," Rev. R. P. Fitch of Cincinnati, will conclude his services in connection with the revival at Pilgrim Holiness Church, tonight at the church.

At a well-attended service at the church last night Reverend Fitch spoke on "Three Things to be Remembered," based on Eccles. 12:1, Luke. 17:32, and Luke. 16:25. Reverend Fitch pointed out the necessity of "remembering the creator in the days of Thy youth," of remembering Lot's wife, who made a partial escape but lost her life by a look and of remembering the good things of life, opportunities and privileges for doing good." Five responded to the call to the altar.

Meditations OF A Married Woman

BY HELEN ROWLAND
THE MONDAY ROAST

A WOMAN never realizes just how little "woman's sacred influence" amounts to until she tries to convince a man in a political argument.

That was a sad day for women when ... discovered that he was "the noblest work of God." But it has never discouraged us from trying to put a few improvements on Heaven's Masterpiece.

* * *

Nowadays no woman is too young for a job nor too old for a love affair —and as long as she has these two, she will never petrify.

A man may be perfectly honest when he tells you that you are the "first and only" woman he ever loved; but don't forget that you are "starting something" which it may take a lot of other girls to finish.

Do your voting quietly. A woman escapes a lot of arguments and keeps a lot more friends, if she can just manage to look blank and protest that she doesn't "understand politics."

A man is old, not when his glands and his arteries lose their pep, but when his imagination becomes so feeble that no woman can make him even fancy himself in love.

A few flashes of silence between her flashes of wit would greatly improve almost any girl's conversation these snappy days.

The world owes every man a living; but what always shocks and astonishes a college graduate is the bitter discovery that he will have to hustle around and COLLECT it.

Once the notion that a girl is hopelessly in love with him has become fixed in a man's mind, you might as well try to unscramble an omelet as to attempt to extract it from his consciousness.

Woman wants but little here below —a little of EVERYTHING!

CALVARY RITES

Special Services To Be Held Each Night Except Saturday

Special services have been announced for each night, this week, with the exception of Saturday, at Calvary Evangelical Church, in connection with the revival in progress there.

Monday will be "musical night," a special program being arranged, Tuesday, "parents' or family night," Wednesday, special services for the Emma Berger and Men's Bible Class, Thursday, "bring one" night, and Friday, "Sunday School" night. There will be a prayer service at 9:30 o'clock Tuesday morning at the church and at 7 o'clock each night, preceding the regular services.

Day of Fasting

Wednesday has been set aside as a day of fasting and prayer, and the church will be open all hours for the benefit of those who wish to enter and pray. All church members are requested to stop for a few minutes prayer, at least, if possible.

Referring to the preaching of Noah and the failure of the people to repent, Reverend Radebaugh in his sermon last night, said in part, "When a man is lost he is lost by his own free will and choice. When Christ saves us from our sins, He has confidence in us and believes we will be obedient and when we are disobedient, trouble follows. Some of us fail to consider soul salvation until the storms come and often, like those Noah preached to, are shut out of the ark of safety by our own indifference."

There were two responses to the call to the altar, the church having been well-filled. Other features of the service were a vocal solo, "It's Real" by Rev. James Campbell, and a song, "Just Outside the Door" by the Calvary Male Chorus.

At the morning service, also well-attended, Reverend Radebaugh preached on the subject, "Where Art Thou?" and Miss Velma A. Schneller, Aurora, Ill., sang, "I've Found Him." During the Sunday School hour she sang, "Jesus Will Save."

Sally's Shoulders

by BEATRICE BURTON, Author of "HER MAN," "HONEY LOU," "THE HOLLYWOOD GIRL," etc.

CHAPTER LIII

If Aunt Em had one human weakness in her makeup, it was her affection for Sally's father.

He might be the black sheep of the family. He might have won her scorn by deserting his family years before. But she loved him nevertheless as a very upright and capable human being will love one who is weak and full of faults.

So Sally went straight to her with the message from her mother.

"Now, isn't that just like them! Sending to me for a hundred dollars just as if I could go and pick it off one of those bushes in the back yard!" cried Aunt Em, waving her arm angrily toward the red currant bushes that filled a triangle of ground beyond the driveway. "They're like a couple of crazy children—your mother and father. They have no more sense than a pair of babies!"

She dusted some flour from her slender hands, untied her apron, and still scolding, hurried upstairs to get some money from the photograph album in her trunk. She always kept bills in between the pages of the old album. No burglar, she always maintained, would think of looking for money in between the pictures of Grandfather Jerome and Aunt Katy and all the rest of the Jeromes who had been dead for many years.

Sally was relieved when she saw her climb into her car and roll down the driveway in the direction of the nearest telegraph office, to wire Mrs. Jerome the money she wanted.

She did not want Aunt Em in the house when Beau's new-found friend arrived.

"If Aunt Em knew that Beau was running around with a girl she'd throw him out of the house head first," thought Sally, hurrying into some fresh clothes and running a quick comb through the soft, dark waves of her hair.

The hall clock was chiming the half hour after 5 when the front door bell rang sharply. Buttoning her cuffs, Sally flew down the stairs.

The girl who stood waiting on the front porch was just the sort of girl she would expect Beau to pick out. She was dark and slender and flashy-looking, as Mabel had been in those care-free days before she had had a husband and a baby.

There were dimples in her cheeks, and a particularly bright shade of raspberry rouge. Her lips were a gash of scarlet in her small face. When she spoke her voice had the same brassy quality that Mabel's voice had:

"Are you Bud's sister? Is he here yet?"

Sally opened the screen door and let her in. She stepped into the hall, and a sweeping odor of heliotrope perfume came in with her. She jingled as she walked—bead fringe on her handbag, a dozen bracelets on her slender bare arms, anklets under her chiffon stockings.

"Won't you come in here, please?" asked Sally, and led her down the long hall to Aunt Em's tiny "office" at the very end of it. She shut the door behind them and locked it.

Then she faced Beau's lady love and found her staring at her in wide-eyed astonishment.

"Why did you lock that door?" she gasped, and Sally gave that swift, sunshiny smile of hers that could mean so much or so little.

"I don't want," she answered slowly and deliberately, "I don't want Beau's wife to come in while you're here."

The girl's round hazel eyes became still more round.

"Who's Beau?"

"My brother. The person you call 'Bud,'" said Sally, and sat down on the edge of Aunt Em's desk chair. "You didn't know he was married did you?"

The girl's face was all the answer she needed. It was blank with amazement and bewilderment. White as a sheet of paper, and almost as empty. "Oh, no," she said in a very small voice.

"Well, he is," Sally went on. "He has a baby, too. That's what I want to talk to you about. You mustn't—"

She never finished the sentence. She saw that she did not need to finish saying what she was going to say.

For the girl sprang up from the straight chair where she had been sitting and started for the locked door. "You don't have to talk to me about anything!" she cried shrilly. "Just let me get out of here. Just let me out! Married! Oh, my gosh! I don't want nothin' to do with no married men. Let me out!"

Sally could have laughed at her anxiety to get away and her truly funny expression of fear, if she had not felt like crying, too. It seemed such a dreadful thing for Beau to do—to pick up a girl of this type for an evening's wild escapade when he had a tiny son upstairs and a wife who was willing to go to work for him. Sally had gained a lot of respect for the jazzy, brassy little Mabel during the past day and a half.

She turned the key in the door and the girl, whose name she did not even know, swung through the opening and down the long shadowy hall to the front porch.

Just as she reached it and started briskly down the front steps, a small red car flashed through the gateposts, and curved around the driveway. It stopped at the bottom of the steps before Beau even saw the girl who knew him as "Bud."

But the girl saw him.

Her eyes went from him to the woman who sat beside him—Mabel! By some unlucky chance Beau had picked Mabel up on his way home from down town. Sally, watching the little scene from the screen door, groaned as she saw the smile of malice that slanted across the unknown girl's face.

"You're a swell kind of a bozo, aren't you?" she heard her call in that coarse nasal voice. "To take a decent girl out when all the time you got a mama of your own at home. You're some baboon, all right. Don't do me no favors next time, Bud, by asking me out. Stay at home and walk the floor with the kid. That's plenty of speed for you!"

If her slang was hard to understand, her attitude towards Beau was very plain. And Mabel's little face was a study as she watched her go swinging down the driveway, rounded hips swaying, anklets flashing under thin stockings, bracelets tinkling cheerfully as she walked. She vanished through the tall gate-posts like some over-dressed movie vamp in a bathing beauty film.

"So that's the kind of girl you like, Beau?" Mabel said to her husband with unexpected quietness when she was out of sight. "So that's what you pick up with when Mabel gives you your head. Well, let me tell you something, Beau. We're leaving this house this week and you're going into a house of your own where you won't have so much loose money to throw away on daughters of jazz!"

Sally could have given Mabel three cheers as she listened to her. Really, hard luck was making quite a woman of little Mabsy, she said to herself that night as she got into her blue dress and strapped on her blue and silver dancing slippers. Hard luck always brings out the best—or the worst—in any woman. It all depends on the kind of woman she happens to be.

That night Mabel came to her when she was undressing for bed.

"Will you do me the greatest kind of a favor?" she asked. "I want to go house hunting—or flat hunting, I should say—tomorrow. And I've just started on this new job, and I want to hold it for awhile. Will you take my place in Mr. Nye's office while I look up a flat?"

Sally's heart seemed to turn a complete somersault in her breast. . . . To go back to the familiar office in the Nye-Naylor building! To take orders once again from the deep, low voice of John Nye! To see his dark, handsome head bent over his desk, and his tanned hands nervously tapping the plate glass cover or the telephone! . . . The mere thought of these things made her breath come jerkily and a slow, painful flush stir in her cheeks.

"No," she said, "I'm sorry, Mabsy."

She remembered, too, that embarrassing moment when he had come upon her in Ted Sloan's arms under the willow tree and the currant bushes in Aunt Em's dark garden not so long ago.

"Anything else, I'd do for you," she declared, "but not that."

Mabel's troubled face grew still more troubled. "I've got to find a flat," she explained again. "And the sooner I do find it the better for me, I think. I'm not going to fuss with Beau about running out with this girl—but I am going to get him to the place where he won't have any money for anyone but me and the baby. Wild women won't run around with a man who doesn't have a lot of money to spend. And I'm going to see that Beau doesn't have ANY!" Her face was firm with determination as she marched off to bed.

The next morning when Mabel went downstairs for the baby's bottle she found Sally getting breakfast in a bungalow apron that covered her old office suit of black serge.

Sally had changed her mind.

"I thought I'd go down and take care of your work, Mabsy," she said, without looking up from the eggs she was cracking for an omelet. "After all, the most important thing for us right now is to get Beau back on the straight and narrow. And even if I don't like John Nye, I don't mind spending a day in an office, while you look up a place to live."

* * *

"Even if I don't like John Nye." It gave her the strangest feeling to say that. . . . She knew, as she said it, that she loved him. She might hate him, in a way, because he had treated her more or less shabbily, but she couldn't get over her feeling of thrill whenever she thought about him. . . . What was it the silly, popular song said:

"But when I hate you
It's 'cause I love you—"

It was silly, but it was true.

"Why don't you like John Nye?" Mabel's voice was an echo of her thoughts.

"Why don't I?" asked Sally, slipping out of the apron and popping the omelet into the oven.

"Now, Mabsy, you take that out in 20 minutes," she said. "Beau will be down for breakfast by then, and you might carry some up to Millie. . . . Why, I don't like him because—because—"

"You don't like him because Millie's trying to make you think that he got smart with her!" chirped Mabel, nodding her head wisely. "But don't let her come any of that stuff on you! I heard all about what really happened between her and John Nye from Miss Kress. I told you I'd find out, and I did!"

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

Yesterday which was Sunday, it was cold when me and Jubilee woke up and there was almost enough snow on the ground for a fella to go slaying. I let him down by the rope in his teeth and then I went down and drug the ashpan out from under the bazeburner and carried it out the back door. I couldn't see where I was putting my feet on account of the ashpan being in front of me, and I stepped on something on the step and skidded and sot down with the ashes in my lap so hard my eyes went around like pinwheels. I put one hand behind me and pulled out what I had skidded on and it was my skates that Spider had tied together and left there, because the crook was afraid to bring them home whilst I was awake.

I was setting there thinking what I was going to do to him when I caught him, when all at once I riz up like an air plane and sailed off of the step in a nose dive. There was a live coal in amongst the ashes and I had not knowed it and it had burnt a hole through my pants and my pocket, and would have went right on through my leg and the other side of my pants and the step if I hadn't got up. That was why I got up.

It is funny how long fire lasts if it is in something that won't burn. I bet sometime people will can fire in the summer when they get through cooking their breakfasts and dinners and suppers, and save it to use when it gets winter. I'll make Spider think someone has lit a fire under him for keeping my skates all day.

This morning my father was out in the yard and he was talking about my burnt leg, and he said there is no need of my getting all scarred up, like I am doing, and I ought to use a little sense. The bunch was around giving me the grins, and there was a teacup full of ice on the wash bench and the cup had broke and nothing was left but the lump of ice, and my father must have wanted to show off. He took the hunk of ice and threw it up in the air as high as he could, and it went almost out of sight. Just then my mother called him to breakfast, and he looked around at her and said, "In a minute," and then just as he looked up in the air again the piece of ice got back and plunked him right in the face.

It took all the strength my grandfather and uncle had to carry him in the house and my mother and ant was scairt stiff, but he came two after a while, but he didn't go to work. He couldn't remember what had happened. He said he thought my mother beaned him with a ball bat for not coming to breakfast.

Love's Embers

A Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

MADGE'S LOVE FOR DICKY

One advantage or disadvantage of marriage judging from the point of view is the vulnerability to attack which each opponent—I use the word advisedly—discovers in the other. And the longer the marital tie in point of years, the greater assortment of deadly poisoned darts possessed by both.

Thus Dicky knows well that nothing so stirs my anger as his timeworn sneer concerning my martyr's crown. I knew from his use of it that he was in the unpleasant mood where he felt like lashing out at anything within his reach. That he particularly would welcome an angry outburst from me I very well knew, and the knowledge helped me to control my wrath which had leaped into flame at the familiar taunt. I even managed a smile as I answered, knowing well that nothing would so infuriate him.

"I think it's adjusted at just the right angle to my head," I told him, "and now if you are sure you have everything you need, I will ask you to excuse me. Katie will bring you in some waffles by the time you have finished the rest of your breakfast, and I really have a great deal to do."

He turned and bowed low, with more than a touch of mockery in the gesture.

"Oh! I fully realize how crushing is the weight of duties upon your shoulders," he said.

"Yes, they are almost as arduous as those burdening you," I retorted flashing a laugh at him. "I trust your horse behaves well this morning. Miss Lincoln is an exacting judge, I understand."

Someway I got myself from the veranda into the house on that note of laughter. But I could keep up the farce no longer. With the laugh strangling into a sob in my throat I fled up the stairs to the sanctuary of my own room, locked my door and flung myself upon my bed, burying my face in the pillow that no sound should betray my paroxysm of sobbing.

I could not understand my tears nor the emotion which caused them. I had believed that after the terrible episode of the poisoned fruit cup which had sent Dicky and me into bitter estrangement, I never could feel either affection, jealousy or anger toward him again. Indeed, I had told myself in all sincerity my heart was like a frozen thing, and—I had not wanted it thawed. After the first shock of Dicky's awful doubt of me had worn away I had been curiously at peace, as women often are when they have passed through some crisis which has drained them of all emotion.

For months I had been genuinely indifferent to Dicky's actions or his opinion of me—or I had thought I was. The result, as far as my emotional reaction was concerned, was the same.

But now, at the knowledge that he was to spend the morning riding with my beautiful, mysterious young neighbor, and then give other hours to sketching her, I felt the old feeling of jealous rage clutching at my throat.

Mercilessly I plunged the scalpel of self-analysis into my feeling and dragged out the wounded vanity which far more than love is at the bottom of feminine jealousy. Eleanor Lincoln was younger than I. Her brunette beauty with her great lustrous dark pansy eyes and her black hair was directly opposite in type to my own coloring and eyes and hair. I knew Dicky's love of beauty and his fastidious standards, and knew that this girl measured up to them. Then, too, and even in the face of my anguish, I jeered at my own absurdity, the young mistress of The Larches was an accomplished horsewoman, while I rode so indifferently that I knew it bored Dicky to have me accompany him. Altogether it was a very uncomfortable inferiority complex which possessed me, not lightened by the knowledge that it was not all vanity at the roots of my jealous rage,—that altogether outside my own volition the embers of my love for my husband were struggling into flame again.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Maytag dealers everywhere follow the standardized rule of sending a Maytag to a home to do a week's washing free, and without obligation of any kind. This is the way all Maytag Gyrafoam Washers are sold. The Maytag must sell itself solely upon its performance in the home. It must wash everything to your entire satisfaction. Must wash everything quicker, easier and cleaner than other washers. Must wash everything—even collars, cuffs and wristbands, without hand-rubbing. Must prove to you, in your own home, that it is the most helpful home-laundering unit you have ever seen or used.

East Climbs on Football Pedestal After Saturday's Games

VICTORIES FOR ARMY PITT OVER WESTERN TEAMS BOOST EAST

Tigers and Irish Previously Undefeated; Welch Run Wild

NEW YORK, Nov. 14—Eastern prestige, which is something one usually kicks first and examines afterward, came into its own with a rush in consequence of Saturday's football returns, which showed the Army and Pittsburgh the winners in the two big intersectional games of the month and perhaps the season. Pitt won from Nebraska, representative team of the Missouri Valley Conference, and the Army scored with surprising ease over Notre Dame, supposedly the greatest outfit in the middle west.

As a result, eastern football looks rather good through the central sections of the country this morning and it wouldn't look so bad in the south either, provided Princeton beat Yale.

But the Tigers Didn't

But it seems that Princeton didn't because it spent the last eight minutes in helping to beat itself. The Tiger was infront with eight minutes to play and, always a sap for the overhead game, it was taken in when Yale decided to try one of those shots in the dark that sometimes click.

However, you don't give Yale a 100 per cent break unless you grant it due recognition for the fighting spark that could and did carry it through, after the loss of Caldwell and an early Princeton touchdown had made matters look like thirty days on the rock pile.

The defeats of Princeton and Notre Dame reduced the lists of unbeaten teams by two, the others managing to stay with the pace although a pair of them were tied. One of these was Tennessee, which got a 7-to-7 stand-off with Vanderbilt and something of a set back in its plans for the acquisition of the southern title. Georgia, also unbeaten and the only team to "take" Yale, came through as usual against Clemson, leaving the Crackers with an average score of 31 1-3 points against all opponents except Yale. The latter crossed Georgia's goal line for the only time this season.

Pitt Still In

Pittsburgh was another undefeated team to survive the day.

Those of the middle west, Illinois and Minnesota, arch-rivals for the Big Ten title, won rather handily. The Illini almost clinched the title by beating Chicago while the Gophers scored easily over Drake.

Out where the west begins, Southern California proceeded right ahead with its non-stop scoring, Colorado being the victim this time.

Of upsets there were not many in number but they were cataclysmic in character. Who expected the Army to beat Notre Dame by three touchdowns? The silence seems to be absolutely deafening.

As for Notre Dame, it was too flat footed to have a chance with an Army team that was fast, shifty, smart, and altogether at the peak of its game. Rated now with Yale, Pitt and W. and J. as an eastern leader, the Army gave its passers, runners and kickers splendid protection and, on the defense, it rushed into the Notre Dame backfield to break up its plays before they could be developed.

All of which is saying a lot for the Army and not enough about the character of the Notre Dame tackling.

As far as their work in this department was concerned, the Irish were simply Chinamen on Saturday.

Cornhuskers Blow Game

Nebraska blew its second game in which it outrushed an opponent in first downs but failed to outscore it in points. As in the Missouri game, the Huskers were ahead of Pitt in first downs by more than 2 to 1 but Gilby Welch ran 93 yards for a touchdown on the opening kick off and later took a pass to run 63 yards for another. The third Pitt score was the result of a 60 yard run, so the Huskers, losing 21 to 13, hardly can claim that their defense in the open field was all it should have been or else they must concede that Pitt's blocking and running were very good.

The valley conference title still can be won but what the Huskers wanted was National recognition. Missouri, meanwhile, made the Valley look as strong as ever by winning from Iowa State, the only team to get as much as a tie with Illinois, prospective winners of the Big Ten championship.

The St. Louis Browns are the only major league baseball team that has not taken part in at least one world's series.

SEVENTY THOUSAND SEE ARMY UPSET NOTRE DAME

Here are some of the upset and the upsetters who participated Saturday in the Army-Notre Dame football game at the Polo Grounds. The game was witnessed by about 70,000 and was one of the football classics of the 1927 season. The Army won 18-0.

OPEN HALL

Dance and Party Marks Opening of Recreation Hall

The Marion Steam Shovel recreation hall was opened for the winter with an entertainment and dance Saturday night. A Columbus orchestra furnished music from 7:30 until 11:30 o'clock. Dancing was enjoyed by the 1,250 people present from 9:30 until 11:30 o'clock.

The party Saturday marked the opening of the sports season at the Shovel recreation hall. The hall will be open for the ensuing five months for such sports as basketball, volleyball, indoor baseball. The hall is maintained for the benefit of employes of the company.

STANFORD LOSES

Santa Clara Takes Cardinals Into Camp to Tune of 16-0

San Francisco, Nov. 14—The status of Stanford in football circles was somewhat scrambled today. Beaten twice, Stanford can yet win or tie in the race for Pacific Coast Conference honors.

Earlier in the season St. Mary's trimmed the Cardinals by a score of 16 to 0. Last Saturday Santa Clara turned upon Warner's men and defeated them by a score of 13 to 6. Both are non-conference teams.

Warner was spared the painful ordeal of watching the biggest upset on the coast this year. He was at Berkeley viewing California and Washington cover themselves with mud and glory. He must have got an eye full, at that.

BIG TEN MUDDLE FAILS TO CLEAR IN SATURDAY'S GAMES

Illinois, Minnesota Still Tied for Western Conference Honors

Chicago, Nov. 14—Completion of the race for football supremacy among the Big Ten teams of the Western Conference remains practically unchanged today as a result of Saturday's games.

It was not a very happy week-end for gridiron followers in the middle-west. Not only did the conference muddle fail to clarify, but this section was forced to take one on each jaw when two of its outstanding candidates for national recognition, Notre Dame and Nebraska, were smacked out of focus by Army and University of Pittsburgh respectively.

The Big Ten tie for first place, shared by Minnesota and Illinois, remains status quo by virtue of the latter team's well-earned 15-to-6 victory over Chicago. Minnesota rested up with Drake, but scored four touchdowns as a matter of habit. The final score was 27 to 0.

Neither Minnesota nor Illinois has been beaten this season, but both have been tied. With only one more date on the conference schedule there is a provoking suspicion that the season may end with no team able to claim a clean cut title to Big Ten supremacy.

Next Saturday Minnesota tackles the tough Michigan outfit, the team that swamped Navy, 27 to 12. Illinois goes up against Ohio State, the mystery team of the conference. It will be interesting to say the least. If the Gophers and Illini both lose, the season's close will be more exasperating than ever, with three teams knotted for first place.

And it will be nothing to gasp for breath over, if both Michigan and Ohio State turn the trick. Michigan, with its great passing team of Gilbert and Oosterbaan, is one of the toughest machines in the country. The Wolves lost their only game of the season to Illinois and that when Gilbert was out of the lineup. The harassed Buckeyes got a lot of practice Saturday against Denison, winning 61 to 6.

Iowa Beats Badgers

Northwestern dropped another game, this time to Indiana, 18 to 7, and Iowa surprised an interested clientele by trouncing Wisconsin, 16 to 0. Outside of the fact that both games put a damper on the homecoming celebrations at Evanston and Madison, they meant little in the Big Ten race.

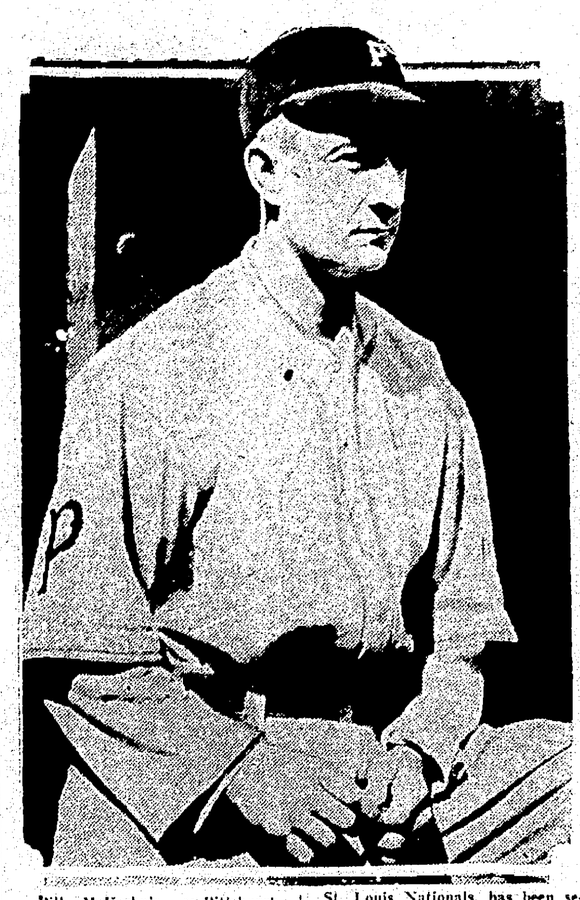

Purdue was another conference team that took a day off to pay social respects to a friendly little neighbor. The Boilermakers beat Franklin, 46 to 0.

BIG TEN RACE IN DEADLOCK

Chicago, Nov. 14—Although Illinois has won two more conference games than Minnesota and has not been tied, these two teams were still deadlocked today as the leaders of the Big Ten race. The standing follows:

	W.	L.	T.
Minnesota	2	0	1
Michigan	3	1	0
Ohio State	2	2	0
Indiana	1	1	1
Chicago	2	3	0
Purdue	1	2	0
Iowa	1	3	0
Wisconsin	1	3	0
Northwestern	1	3	0

BECOMES NEW CARDINAL MANAGER

Bill McKechnie, ex-Pittsburgh pilot, and last season coach of the St. Louis Nationals, has been selected manager of the Mound City team, replacing Bill O'Farrell.

ALMQUIST, GILBERT IN SCORING RACE

Chicago, Nov. 14—A race that is proving almost as interesting as the struggle for the Big Ten football championship, is the sidelight battle between Shorty Almquist of Minnesota, and Lee Gilbert of Michigan, for individual high-scoring honors. Shorty is still leading by a neat margin.

Players who have scored 25 points or better, follow:

Almquist, Minnesota	74
Gilbert, Michigan	63
Lewis, Northwestern	54
Welch, Purdue	30
Miller, Purdue	30
Walker, Illinois	30
Joesting, Minnesota	30
Crofoot, Wisconsin	26
Gustafson, Northwestern	26

Yankee Star Goes to Hospital With Water on Knee

New York, Nov. 14—Red Grange, New York Yankee professional football star, today definitely retired to a hospital for a lengthy rest as his right leg was placed in a plaster cast. Water on the knee has developed physicians said. C. C. Pyle, owner of the Yankees, announced that Grange should be in action again in time for the Thanksgiving game with Benny Friedman's Bulldogs.

SUCCEED

Field Goals Harder To Make Since Goal Posts Were Moved

New York, Nov. 14—Rule makers who aspired to curb the field goal totals, have apparently accomplished their purpose, in setting the goal posts back ten yards, according to statistics completed today. Of the 300 leading individual scorers in the east, only fifteen have succeeded in kicking a three-point goal and only one such goal has been made during the entire season to date in the Western Conference.

Ohio Nimrods to Blow Lid off Hunting Season

Ohio nimrods will spend the greater part of this evening digging out the old hunting coat and oiling the shotgun. For Tuesday the season open on rabbits, partridges, pheasants and all fur bearing animals.

The rabbit crop in the vicinity of Marion is reported to be good. The last minute rush for hunting license will be taken care of tonight. The county clerks' office in the courthouse will be open from 7 until 9 o'clock.

At daylight Tuesday morning the lid will be blown off the 1927 hunting season. The roar of shotguns and the bark of hounds will be familiar sounds in the rural sections for the next week or so.

O. H. Niemeyer, state game protector, in a special communication to The Star gives some advise that, if followed, will make the hunting vacation more pleasant. The first is: Don't shoot more than five rabbits or more than six Hungarian partridges in any one day. Next: Rabbits must be taken with gun or with gun and dog. It is unlawful to trap rabbits. Remember: That the bag limit on pheasants is two a day. And be sure they are cock birds. And as a final reminder, Mr. Neimeyer suggests that all hunters carry their hunting license with them. It is unlawful, he says, to refuse to show the license when requested.

It is unlawful to hunt or trespass on the state game refuge located in Big Island Township. The refuge is located along the Marion-Agosta pike on the land known as the Enoch Hoch farm. The land, according to Mr. Neimeyer, is well posted and anyone found hunting there will be prosecuted. Mr. Neimeyer is located at Prospect.

Lutherans Sew Up Two Titles By Winning From Bishops Saturday

Wittenberg Breaks Jinx; Beats Wesleyan for First Time in Third of Century

Oberlin Beats Wooster in Most Important Northern Ohio Game; Toledo Looks Like Champ of Northwestern Ohio Conference

COLUMBUS, Nov. 14—A new sun arises on the horizon of Ohio intercollegiate football as the dying 1927 season enters its final week.

Wittenberg, followed by the jinx of Ohio Wesleyan for three decades, has at last come into its own. The Lutherans, after coming from behind to defeat the Bishops is a dramatic battle at Springfield Saturday, have sewed up two championships, one in the Ohio conference and the other in the Buckeye Athletic Association.

Others True To Form

Other conference teams ran true to form. Dayton showed surprising strength in holding Miami to a one-point victory. Ohio Conference schools in recent years have become increasingly reluctant to schedule games with two teams which are nominally members of the conference. These two are Dayton and St. Xavier.

St. Xavier was given one conference game this year and Dayton two. Except Ohio State, the Musketeers of St. Xavier are probably the strongest collegiate gridiron aggregation in Ohio this season, but they have little opportunity to demonstrate it. Dayton's fliers are in the same position and on the basis of their showing against Miami they may be reckoned as one of the best in the conference.

Oberlin Wins

Oberlin defeated Wooster in the most important game in the northern part of the state. Oberlin seems to have a propensity for playing just as hard as the occasion demands. Against Case, Akron and Wooster, they have just nosed out ahead, but on the other hand they have been outclassed only once—in the Miami game.

Heidelberg won from Otterbein and Case outclassed Hiram in contests among te lesser lights. Cincinnati provided the upset of the day by holding Ohio to a 7 to 7 tie. The Queen City eleven, after playing very inferior football during most of the season, seems to be getting stronger towards the end.

Mt. Union Trims Kenyon

Mt. Union took Kenyon and nobody was surprised, although the Gambier team was leading at the half. The Gambier team did all its scoring in the first half and the Mounts did theirs in the second.

In the Northwest Ohio Conference, Toledo still looks like the champion having won three games and lost none. Bowling Green is still in the running, however, with two victories and no defeats and if the Falcons can win from Bluffton next Saturday they will be entitled to a tie for the championship. Bowling Green, incidentally, is the only undefeated team in the state and their goal line has not been crossed this season.

Love may be blind—but it knows when there's too much light in the room.

HOT STOVE LEAGUE RUMORS BIG TRADE BETWEEN GIANTS AND CARDS

Baseball followers are wondering what connection there is between the New York and St. Louis clubs of the National League, for the trade winds are once more blowing, following the sensational swap last year of Rogers Hornsby for Frank Frisch and Jimmy Ring. Now it's reported that Pitcher Flint Rhem of the Cards (left) and Third Baseman Lester Bell (right) will go to the Giants in exchange for Third Baseman Fred Lindstorm (center) and Pitcher Virgil Barnes (inset.)

MARYSVILLE ELEVEN WILL MEET RICHWOOD

High Schools To Play Friday; Alumni Teams Meet Thanksgiving Day

Marysville, Nov. 14 — The stellar Marysville High school football eleven will journey to Richwood Friday, for its last scheduled game of the season, under present arrangements. Marysville and Richwood have been keen rivals in football for many years, and the locals have dropped a number of games to teams from that school. Athletic relations between the schools came to a breaking point four years ago, but the breach has been closed and the two schools resumed their relations last year.

If comparative scores mean anything the locals ought to win this year by a large score. In a game between London and Richwood two weeks ago, the latter team was defeated by a score of 18 to 15. The Marysville-London tilt of last week resulted in a walkaway for the locals 53 to 0, from which it may be surmised that the Marysville boys are considerably stronger. But on the other hand Richwood defeated Forest 41 to 0, while the best Marysville could do with the same opponents was 31 to 0.

Richwood has lost several games this season, while Marysville playing stronger teams, remains undefeated. They have held their opponents to 7 points while they have scored, which is by far the best record of any team in the history of Marysville High School.

Members of the Marysville High school alumni and the Richwood High school alumni, are planning a game to be played at Richwood on Thanksgiving Day. A Marysville eleven is being organized by Otway B. Shearer and it is planned to have two or three substitutes for each position as no player is expected to last longer than a play or two. A similar match was played here four years ago.

So many young business women are now insuring themselves that many companies have provided special facilities.

CHURCH PAPER EDITOR SPEAKS

Rev. Carl Heyl, D. D., Cleveland, Appears Before Galion Congregation

Galion, Nov. 14—Rev. Carl Heyl, D. D., of Cleveland, was the guest speaker at both services at the First Reformed church yesterday and gave very interesting and beneficial messages. His morning address was a recital of many experiences enjoyed, while on a recent trip throughout Northern Canada in the interests of the church. Last night, his talk explained the work of the Cleveland church publishing house and of the church paper of which Rev. Heyl is editor. The choir furnished special music at the morning service and last night, a quartet composed of Mrs. Howard Evans, Naomi Durtchi, Rufus Eckstein and John Bolby gave the musical setting for the worship. Rev. G. E. Zinn was in Dayton assisting in the celebration of the 75th anniversary of the Reformed church there and was scheduled for a special address.

A series of interesting sermons "Character Studies of the Man of Galilee" were begun last night at the Peace Lutheran church by Rev. Philip Auer and the first number proved interesting and inspiring. Two important social events are scheduled for the week the first being a Young People's Society social which will be held tomorrow night in the church parlors. The Men's Brotherhood of the church will enjoy a rabbit supper at the K. of P. hall Thursday night and members of the Ladies Aid and special guests are included on the list of invitations issued.

To Hold Stunt Night

The second sermon of a group "Unalterable Standards of Jesus" was given by Rev. W. O. Montague at the First United Brethren church yesterday morning and for the day's final service Rev. Cora Tester of Tiro gave the address. A special stunt night, in which all members of church and Sunday school will have a part, will be given tomorrow night. Among the interesting features which have been planned is a dramatization contest between the various classes of the Sunday school. Biblical incidents or actual Christian experiences will be portrayed.

Robert Resch and Ronald Sebastian were leaders in a spirited discussion at the Luther League meeting at the First Lutheran church last night with "The Good and Bad in Magazines" as the topic. Many interesting young speakers were introduced and the meeting proved one of the outstanding ones of recent months. For subjects of sermons yesterday, Rev. O. C. Kramer used "Forgiveness" and "Keeping the Heart." Missionary women of the congregation are planning a Thank-offering service for Friday night with a returned missionary, Miss Florence Welty, giving the address.

Rev. Robert C. Fendbrock, Sandusky, Mich., had charge of the services at Grace Episcopal church and at the Church of Christ, Rev. M. L. Buckley spoke upon "Not Ashamed of the Gospel of Christ."

District Superintendent William Brickner presided at the Market Street Methodist services and Rev. R. B. Porter of First Presbyterian chose "The Secret of Victory" and "The Secret of Prevailing Prayer" as his subject.

Henry J. Deal Found Dead in Cave Home Near Chattanooga, Tenn.

Bucyrus, Nov. 14—Dead in his cave on Signal Mountain near James Point, where he had lived for years in seclusion, Henry J. Deal, prominent Bucyrus man until 25 years ago, was found by friends according to Chattanooga, Tenn., reports.

According to the Chattanooga Times, C. A. Comer, superintendent of the Chattanooga Traction Co., and H. H. Meroney, superintendent of a postoffice station, became worried Thursday, not having seen Deal for sometime. Mr. Deal made daily trips to the postoffice and Mr. Comer was accustomed to seeing the recluse every day. The two men formed a searching party and with two ambulance attendants went to the cave.

The men were faced by several dogs that growled and snapped at the rescuers as they attempted to enter the cave, but by forcing the dogs to retreat into the inner recesses, McCullugh and Hicks entered to find Deal's body lying on a small platform of boards that he had constructed. Lying across the body, guarding her master was a dog, one of the many given a home by Deal, who was very fond of them.

Mr. Deal was active in civic work and had a wide circle of friends here.

100TH ANNIVERSARY OBSERVED AT KENTON

Program at Church of Christ Feature of Day's Services

Kenton, Nov. 14 — Featuring the services in Kenton's churches Sunday was the observance carried out by the Church of Christ marking the centennial anniversary of the founding of the denomination known as the Disciples.

The record crowd of church members was augmented by Disciples from other churches of Hardin County.

The celebration service opened at 10:45 in the morning with the pastor, Rev. H. Erwin Stafford speaking on one hundred years of history. At noon a picnic dinner was served.

During the afternoon Miner Lee Eatesm president of Hiram College, spoke on the great council of Faith and Orde held at Lausanne, Europe, to which he was a delegate. This was one of the greatest religious conferences since the third century.

Touching on the history of the church, Rev. Stafford said that on November 18, 1827, Walter Scott preached his famous sermon in the New Lisbon Baptist church and at the conclusion the audience decided henceforth to be known as "Disciples," or "Christians" only. This marked the beginning of the body known as "Disciples of Christ."

Another leading service was that held in the First M. E. church when four young people, Mary Born, Burke Jones, Edwin Fulton and Marion Latimer, delivered peace orations in the Peace Declamation contest. Their topics were "What Price Glory," and "The Big Parade."

Special musical numbers were presented by Mrs. P. E. Decatur and Owen Roberts, director of music in the Kenton public schools.

COUNTY'S ROADS ARE BEST IN HISTORY

85,000 Tons of Crushed Stone Placed Under Supervision of Engineer Gebert

Kenton, Nov. 14—Hardin County's roads are in better condition now than they have ever been before, according to County Engineer P. M. Gabert, who has just supervised the placing of 85,000 tons of crushed stone on the highways. He is preparing to put on 20,000 more tons before the highway season ends. Hardin County has approximately 450 miles of traffic bound macadam roads having been completed this summer. These roads are 12 feet wide and have a layer of nine inches of crushed stone. This stone will serve as a base when the time comes to convert them into more pretentious highways as the demands of traffic make their reconstruction necessary. Under this method, the old road can be salvaged. County Engineer Gebert said today that the Keely-Chamberlein-pk, which is a mile long, probably will be rebuilt this fall.

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

Ruddy cheeks—sparkling eyes—most women can have. Dr. F. M. Edwards for 20 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave his patients a substitute for calomel made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming them Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. Know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, which cause a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue headaches, a listless no-good feeling, all out of sorts inactive bowels, you take one of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results. Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—now and then to keep fit. 15c, 30c and 60c.—Adv.

LIST AS WHOLE DULL AND HEAVY

Investment Buying Constitutes Background of Rally in Isolated Sections

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

Railroad stocks, firm; industrial stocks, irregular; domestic bonds, steady; foreign bonds, steady; call money, 3½ per cent; grain, irregular; copper, firm; oil, irregular; cotton, irregular; rubber, steady; sugar, steady; pig iron, steady; foreign exchange, strong.

New York, Nov. 14—Selling pressure against the industrial speculative stocks, arising chiefly from profit-taking and the withdrawal of funds from the call loan market, prevented any wide "demonstrations" in the stock market today, and the stock list as a whole was dull and heavy.

Investment buying of the better grade of railroad shares, and strong bullish support for the "pool pets" that have been advancing almost without interruption since Mid-October, constituted the principal background for a rally in isolated sections of the market. A number of "new highs" were recorded, but generally at no great distance above the peak prices already established for these stocks.

Wall Street is convinced that nothing in the way of a real slump in business is in sight though corporations may be compelled to accept a lower range of profits on their outputs in the next year or so. The steel corporations have within the last week taken steps to raise the market prices of finished steel copper producers refuse to grant concessions below 13½ cents a pound for copper; and even the distracted crude oil producers are hopeful of so controlling the flow of oil as to lay the foundation for a higher price scale.

Last week's sharp advance in the industrials and specialties wiped out a considerable volume of the outstanding short interest and created paper profits on a large scale for the professionals in and out of Wall Street. For that reason the offerings of stock today found fewer ready buyers than at the latter part of last week, and the trend of prices was slightly lower.

An ancient tobacco pipe, believed to have been left behind by a workman in 1690, has been found in the tower of St. Mary Somerset, Lambeth Hill, London, E. C. The pipe was discovered in a niche in the wall, and was apparently left there when the tower (which is all that remains of the church) was rebuilt after the Great Fire.

Chicago, Nov. 14—The United States report on corn for November and the Dominion estimate of western Canadian wheat yields turned wheat and corn futures upside down so far as the calculations of local traders were concerned. The domestic corn report was much more bearish than expected, and the Canadian estimate on wheat was a surprise to nearly every one.

As a result prices for corn tumbled rapidly Saturday, while there was more confident buying of wheat than there has been for a long time. Oats sympathized with corn, working off a little, but still closed higher for the week, while rye tightened rapidly with the advance of wheat.

For the week wheat was 1½ to 1⅝c higher; corn, ¼ to ⅜c off; oats, ¼ to 1⅛c up; and rye, 4½ to 5½c higher.

Canadian News Surprises

For the past two weeks the wheat trade here and at other markets have been surfeited with private estimates coming from Canada, claiming tremendous increases in yields over what was expected early in the fall. In some cases private estimates indicated more than 500,000,000 bushel. The Dominion report, therefore, estimating the crop at 14,000,000 bushel less than the preliminary figures of a few weeks ago, was a distinct surprise.

The crop now indicated is 35,000,000 bushel more than was raised a year ago, but the present prices for wheat discount some increase in the crop. Alberta was given a yield of 65,000,000 bushel more than a year ago, but in the other two provinces the yield was cut 20,000,000 bushel.

The November corn figures of the government caused a wave of general selling in corn, and the market faded away easily under this selling. The cash demand was checked by the report also, and country offerings increased. The crop estimated, 2,753,000,000 bushel, was far greater than any one expected. Longs unloaded freely. New buying was of moderate extent.

Small stocks of rye, an intermittent export demand, and moderate receipts continue, and the past week it advanced faster than wheat. Duluth continues to ship freely, and it is expected that export clearances will continue liberal.

Oats were fairly strong, showing gains for the week in spite of somewhat larger receipts, liberal sales to store, and a slow cash demand. The Canadian crop was estimated at 452,000,000 bushel against 383,000,000 bushel a year ago.
